EXPLANATION MADE OF FRENCH CREDITS TO LITTLE ENTENTE

By Associated Press

PARIS, Jan. 16.—With unfunded debts to the American and British governments amounting to nearly $3,000,000,000, some criticism has been directed at France for having advanced 800,000,000 francs to countries of the Little Entente during 1923. Of the amount, 400,000,000 francs were credited to Poland; 300,000,000 to Yugoslavia and 100,000,000 to Romania. However, documents published recently by the French government show that not one centime has left the Bank of France consigned to those countries.

ENCOURAGING REPORT FROM FRANKFORT

Southeastern Kentucky readers are encouraged by the report from T. H. Hill in today's issue in which he presents the governor's attitude as favorable toward this section and says a highway commission from here is practically assured. Mr. Hill was in conference with the governor for an hour and a half yesterday and those who know Mr. Hill are confident that he was able to say quite a bit in that time.

The big concern just now is, of course, action by the governor to allow the contracts on the 21 miles of road between Harboursville and Berea to go through. If Governor Fields is sympathetic to this section, as Mr. Hill says, he can very soon show it by his action here in this vital matter. If the contracts are held up until the fate of the bond issue is determined, as the governor suggests, Route A, which promised to be open by next September, will be doomed.

As a matter of fact, the $75,000,000 bond issue has no assurance of passage. The governor added $25,000,000 to the original proposal more in effort to make it a Democratic measure than anything else and there are voters a plenty who will hesitate to put $75,000,000 into the hands of Kentucky politicians to spend, who would favor allowing $50,000,000 for a primary system of roads to be apportioned by a bipartisan board. Not that all of the causes which this proposed issue outlines are not worthy ones—the trouble lies in assurance that they would all get the amount designated.

It is, then, essential that the contracts be validated at once without waiting for this issue to go through, if we want to get highway through Kentucky any time in the near future.

SQUARE DEAL FOR THE RAILROADS

It has been for so long the fashion to malign the railroads for profiteering and swindling the public that we don't seem to be able to get away from it. Despite the great expenses, debts incurred and general struggle which the railroads have had trying to get back to normalcy after the regime of government ownership, they have still been the butt of general criticism.

The following item deals with this matter very concisely:

"Are the railroads getting a square deal? If you think so, read this: The railroads are today paying out more in taxes than they are in dividends, according to figures just compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics from the records of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Ten years ago—that is, in 1913—the total dividends paid to railroad stockholders were about two and a half the total railroad taxes. In the year 1922 the cash dividends paid in 1913 totaled $322,300,406, and the taxes $127,725,860. Dividends in 1922 totaled $271,576,000 and taxes $201,003,227. In the ten-year period, 1913 to 1922, therefore, taxes increased about 135 per cent, while dividends decreased about 10 per cent. The increase in taxes is due in part to an increase of approximately five billion dollars in the property investment of the railroads between 1913 and 1922. But, while the total investment and value of railroad property devoted to public service during this period has increased about 38 per cent, and taxes upon the property 135 per cent, the total compensation to railway stockholders has decreased 16 per cent.

Berton Braley's Poem

WALTER HAMPTON IN CYRANO DE BERGERAC

Poet and Knight of True Romance,
Who swung his sword or flung a phrase
With equal nerve; whose burning glance
Quelled not before mistime's gaze;
Who scorned to tawn for gold or praise—
Hampton, you bring his magic back
That cavalier of old, bold days,
Brave Cyrano de Bergerac.

Craggy of nose and countenance,
Hero of countless gallant fray,
Red-headed, straight as any lance,
He struts alone his chosen way;
Palsehood and knavery he flays,
Nor fears the mightiest to attack—
Thus Hampton splendidly portrays
Brave Cyrano de Bergerac.

He leads a lone and hopeless chance,
His sword agleam, his eyes ablaze,
Against the hosts of circumstance
And death itself. His life he lays Beneath a woman's feet—and
A glorious he; his heart may crack,
But still he jests, till treacherous slays

Brave Cyrano de Bergerac
Ever his plume unshaken stays,
Never his faith or love grows slack,
Our eyes he dims, our hearts he stuns,
Brave Cyrano de Bergerac.

When Politeness Pays

LONDON—London's "gentlemanly" will have a bank account when he's released from prison six years hence. Just after he was sentenced, magistrates and constables made a little deposit to his credit. He had pleaded he'd never been given a chance to redeem himself after he was first sentenced on a minor charge while in his teens. The man, looked under an alias, is the son of an army officer. Before leaving the courtroom, he thanked constables and jailers for the courteous treatment they accorded him after his arrest. He had confessed to entering nineteen homes.

I. team was composed only of high school students.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE WOMAN'S CLUB OF MIDDLESBORO TO THE MEMORY OF MRS. JOHN SURMAN

Whereas, in the providence of God, it has been His will to call to Himself our much beloved friend and member, Mrs. John Surman, who endeared herself to us by her life of loving service, and whose deeds of kindness and self-sacrifice will ever be an inspiration to us—Therefore it is resolved—
That in her death the Woman's Club of Middlesboro loses one of its most valued members. That the Woman's Club extend to her family its deepest sympathy, with the prayer that God will comfort them in their great and sore bereavement. That this tribute of love and appreciation be placed upon the minutes of the Woman's Club, that it be published in the local papers and that a copy be sent to her bereaved family.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton
NANCY RIDES A CIRCUS HORSE

"Suddenly a telegram fell right at Daddy's feet."

Well, everybody got back safely to Daddy Gander Land—all except Mother Goose, who said she would be delayed an hour or so on account of having to call on the weather man. But even that didn't leave Daddy Gander much time for all he had to do. He hadn't expected his wife home for a week.
"My goodness!" he exclaimed to the Twins. "It's a very good thing that we ran into her when we did. I never like to have her come home without sending me word, and that's something she doesn't always do."
Everybody knew what Daddy meant. He meant the big sign which said Mother Goose—Her Land, when Mother Goose was at home, but on the other side of which Daddy had painted Daddy Gander—His Land, while she was away. And that side was always out when Mother Goose was away up in the sky. And Daddy hoisted things with a high hand then.

"We'll have to turn the sign around the way it belongs," said Daddy anxiously, looking at the sky. "Mother may be back any minute."
Away went Daddy and the Twins and Tom Tinker to fix it, when suddenly a telegram fell right at Daddy's feet. The telegram read:
Daddy Gander—Mother Goose
Can't get home today. Weatherman gone visiting and can't find him. Will have to stay and watch the rainbats, so they don't splash over and spoil the circus. Best love,
Mother Goose

"Well, well, well! I guess there's no hurry then," said Daddy Gander. "But what do you think?" The circusman came up and whispered to Daddy Gander that one of the bareback riders was sick and they would have to leave off her act. Nancy heard him.
"I have my magic shoes and I'd love to ride a horse," she declared. "Oh, please, do let me!"
And so it happened that Nancy put on fluffy skirts and a shiny crown and rode a big white horse in the circus.
And to this day the people in Daddy Gander Land say she was the best they ever saw.

MODERN CRAZE FOR ANTIQUES CREATES IMPORTANT BRAZILIAN BUSINESS

DIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 16.—The buying and selling of antiques, which came into existence as a regular business in this city during the recent Centennial Exposition, has become one of the most important branches of retail trade in the country.
Blackened and dented silver, massive and ugly jewelry, decrepit furniture, sandy pictures and quantities of articles of nondescript nature are being bought and sold at wondrous prices merely because they bear the crest, monogram, or signature of some of the nobility of the erstwhile Brazilian empire.
The trade was originally designed for tourists, particularly Americans, but it has proved of unexpected interest to the Brazilians themselves. The "new rich" are seizing the opportunity to lend an appearance of dignity to their recently acquired social importance, and some of the remnants of the former nobility are finding means to tide themselves over financial difficulties in the trade of antiques.
At first the antique stores occupied inexpensive locations on the outskirts of the business center, but now several of them have moved into luxurious quarters in the most expensive part of the downtown district. All of them seek relics of imperial life on the old "fazendas," or plantations whose magnificence disappeared with the abolition of slavery.

Midwinter
Now there are no green twilights,
Only gray dusk and dawn,
As the sun swings slowly
Up from Capricorn.
But in my winter meadow
The bluest weeds that grow
Become significant as stalks
Stand black against the snow.
Small colors are like black tents,
And where the gray wall stands
Old vines are clinging stoutly,
As though with little hands.
Around the roots of willows
Are patterns like fine lace
That show where the small deer
Came from her hiding place.
I can see where a rabbit
Doubled his tracks as he
Slipped with age-old cunning
Away from his enemy.
There is no call nor singing
But where the chickadee
Flies down to scarlet berries
That cling to the barberry.
The chickadee is the only
Thing that sings to the snow.
You may find him wherever
The winter berries grow.
This is a different country,
Where stranger shadows bring
Long, straight and sharp outline
With no fluttering.
Short days with no green twilights,
No stirring of the grass.

Only bare branches moult
As the winds pass.

Grape Juice
Sometimes it seems almost impossible to provide the necessary mineral salts during the winter months when green things are scarce.

Heavy for food are demanded to produce heat in the body and supply energy, increasing the need of salts and acids.
One answer to this problem is found in the use of grape juice. The woman who cannot or cannot find quantities of this juice will find it a boon if offering various to their cooking.
Aside from a drink for the convalescent or the party punch, grape juice can be used in many ways.
In pudding grape juice gives just the richness of color and taste so desirable on a cold winter night after a substantial dinner.

Grape Juice Pudding
Two cups grape juice, 1 1/2 cups cornstarch, 1 dessertspoon butter, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg, few grains salt, 1/2 cup cold water.
Put the grape juice in a saucepan and add the sugar, salt and cold water. Boil until thick and transparent. Remove from fire. Separate whites from yolks of eggs. Save yolks for sauce. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry with cold water and salt. Fold into grape juice mixture. Turn into individual molds to set and chill. Unmold and serve with custard sauce.

Tapoca Grape Juice
One and one-half cups grape juice, 11 cups water, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 2 1/2 cup sugar, 1 cup minute tapioca, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.
Put grape juice, water, salt and sugar in a saucepan and put over the fire. When boiling, stir in tapioca. Cook, stirring to prevent sticking, until transparent. Add lemon juice and turn into mold to chill. Serve with or without whipped cream.
Banana Baked in Grape Juice
One slice of banana cut three inches thick, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, grape juice.
Pour boiling water over heat and let boil an hour. Drain. Put in rounder by making flesh, soft, with spices and pour over grape juice. To half cover meat. Bake in a slow oven for one and one-half hours.

Grape juice makes delicious pudding sauce for a simple cottage pudding or blanc mange.
It can be used in just as many other fruit is used. If a certain color scheme is wanted for a party of any sort grape makes desserts of lovely soft violet.
A jellied fruit salad is both delicious and attractive if the jelly is made with grape juice.
The white grape juice, of course, does not give the color of the juice made from dark grapes, but contains just as many mineral salts and may serve a problem for some delicious color scheme.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM
For the future of the South
BECAUSE of the remarkable development of its natural resources, the South today is taking a new leadership in the economic progress of the nation.
But this leadership, if it is to be maintained, must have a more enduring foundation than the possession and exploitation of material things.
The South of tomorrow will be made by the children of today. The boys now in school and attending the churches will be the captains of industry and the leaders in the professions a few years hence.
Citizenship is in the making in the schools and the churches. A great responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the teachers of the South—in the pulpit and in the class-room.
But the compensation accorded the great majority of them is inadequate.
The Southern Railway System, which pays three million dollars per annum in school taxes, voices not only its own best interest but the ambition of its 60,000 employees in respect to the future of their children and their section, when it expresses the view that greater rewards should be offered the men and women who are building Southern citizenship of tomorrow.

The SOUTHERN SERVES THE SOUTH

Awake at the switch!
YOU press the button and up go the lights, your washing machine motor begins to hum, the percolator gets into action.
Any time. Your electric service is an owl by night and a trusty work-horse by day—it never sleeps. There's no accident about that. Your electric switch brings instant results because there are men on the job to see to it.
Men and equipment. Poles, miles of distributing lines which connect your house to the generating station, automatic stockers, boilers, generators. Most of this you never see, but it's there, awake to your call.
Wakefulness is the very keystone of electric service. The light and power men are awake to present needs and the greater needs of a dozen years hence; they are awake to every suggestion for improvement and every means for economy.
Awake—alert—on the job; their call to action is the click, click, click of switches all over town.

EVERGLADES MAN-HUNT

During the all-day gun fight in the Everglades of Florida, Deputy Sheriff Fred Baker, leader of a posse, and John Ashley, leader of a bandit gang, were killed. Several others were wounded, and some members of the alleged gang captured. The Everglades bandits have terrorized citizens for years. Photo shows Sheriff Bob Baker, brother of the dead deputy, pointing to members of his posse the direction they should take.

While on the trail of the Florida Everglades bandits, a posse discovered a 50-gallon still which had been operated by the bandit gang that has terrorized citizens in that vicinity for years. Photo shows how the posse destroyed the still by force.

MINIMUM RATE AUTO INSURANCE

Boosted Costs in Other Cities Has Not Affected Low Rates Here

Middlesboro automobile owners are enjoying the minimum rate of automobile insurance, according to information received today from the J. L. Manning company. While rates have been increased thirty per cent in Knoxville on account of the large and ever-growing number of accidents there, they remain unchanged in Middlesboro. This town is included in district 10 of the classification, the group which has the lowest rates.

No far as is known, there will not be any increase in rates here. It was announced. Rates are ever higher in large cities where accidents and thefts occur more frequently.

It is said that about half of the automobiles in Middlesboro carry insurance, a small percentage to the amount carried by residents of larger towns. A larger number carry liability insurance than for fire or theft.

It is announced that hereafter rates will be calculated by cities instead of by groups of cities. Lowering of accidents in any city will thus result in a lowering of that city's rates.

A DELIGHTFUL ROW

My wife had suffered from stomach and liver trouble for many years and had taken medicine enough to sink a ship; so when I brought home a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy, on the advice of my employer, she refused to take it. Her liver trouble hadn't helped her disposition any. We had a big row, but she took it the next week. Her ailments have all disappeared. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes catarrh upon from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At 15c and druggists everywhere.
